RASH AND F-TREES AT THE Y. Professor Jarvis of Storrs Addresses Large Audience at Horticultural Society Meeting—Right Pruning Is One of The Secrets—Tree Planting Effective Means of Beautifying Streets.

There was a big audience in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. to hear the address of Prof. Y. M. Jarvis of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society, on the subject of "Right Pruning and Tree Planting as Effective Means of Beautifying Streets." The address was illustrated with clear and pertinent stereoscopic slides, the machine being operated by Albert Lathrop.

Professor Jarvis showed scenes from ideal streets of other cities, and spoke of the advisability of a city nursery, which he spoke extensively on how and where to plant trees; their proper care; the accidents to which trees are liable; the importance of right pruning; lack of pruning or bad pruning he mentioned as one of the most common sources of injury and death of our trees.

At the Academy immediately after the long recess Wednesday noon Prof. Charles M. Jarvis of the State Agricultural college at Storrs spoke to the pupils on the City Beautiful. Prof. Jarvis arrived at noon and was met by Leonard O. Smith, who took him to the headmaster's office in conference.

TOWN AND CITY OFFICIALS PROMISE HELP. Publicity Committee Interviews Sealed and Street Committee on Clean-Up Matters.

Chairman Henry W. Tibbitts, with the two other members of the publicity committee of the City Beautiful, was in conference on Wednesday afternoon with a representative of the selection committee of the town, in which it was learned that the selection were in accord for assisting in any way that they could in the coming clean-up week.

The selection committee further said that they hoped the clean-up idea would have a permanent life, and mentioned something in the clean-up line which showed their recent participation in the effort for the city beautiful and how soon it was all nullified. For Memorial day, the selection committee had the great all nicely out on the Chelsea parade, thinking to make this spot look as nice as it could for the exercise of the town, the work of five men for four hours to put the place back in the perfect condition it had been in before the parade and the gathering of the people.

The parade was strewn and littered with the refuse that had been left there, and it seemed, through the presence of some vendors of package goods, like popcorn or peanuts, whose customers had scattered the paper and other trash and boxes all over the place.

As far as they knew, the selection committee believed the effort in the work had been cleaned out. Alderman Gehrab, chairman of the street committee of the town, was also seen, and he gave assurance of cooperation in whatever way the committee might call upon him during clean-up next week.

The committee is preparing to get out and have distributed some special cards calling attention to the four clean-up days.
